Gates, J. Self-Care: A Christian Perspective. Evangelical Review of Theology. 39, no. 1 (January 2015): 4-17.

Self-care defined:

- Mk 12:31 — “Care for others as you care for yourself” (Le 19:18; Mk 12:31; Ro 13:9; Jas 2:8)
- Eph 5:28-29 – “a husband’s care for himself includes promoting his own ultimate well-being & protecting himself from ultimate harm while excluding self-indulgence.”

Gates, J. Self-Care: A Christian Perspective. Evangelical Review of Theology. 39, no. 1 (January 2015): 4-17.

1. Self-care imitates God's care for himself.
 - a) "God values himself infinitely & seeks to have his creation value him as well."
 - b) "God seeks to have his love returned."
 - c) We are told to follow God's example

Gates, J. Self-Care: A Christian Perspective. Evangelical Review of Theology. 39, no. 1 (January 2015): 4-17.

2. Self-care Imitates God's Care for Us

- a) God loves people
- b) Jesus affirms the dignity of human nature
- c) Jesus showed us humans are worth saving

Gates, J. Self-Care: A Christian Perspective. Evangelical Review of Theology. 39, no. 1 (January 2015): 4-17.

3. Self-care benefits God, others, & ourselves.

a) Self-care benefits God.

- “Self-care is a form of love to God in whose image the self is.”

Gates, J. Self-Care: A Christian Perspective. Evangelical Review of Theology. 39, no. 1 (January 2015): 4-17.

b) Self-care benefits others.

- “we must care about ourselves before we can care about others, because our self-care is the model or standard of neighbour-care.”
- “The Bible teaches that people who don’t love themselves can’t love their neighbour, & only those who have their basic needs met can help others.”

Gates, J. Self-Care: A Christian Perspective. Evangelical Review of Theology. 39, no. 1 (January 2015): 4-17.

c) Self-care benefits us.

- “God made us with a natural tendency to care for ourselves, & this is one of his ways of ensuring that we are cared for.”
- “When sin entered into the human race, it brought a self-indulgence that hinders people from caring for themselves.”

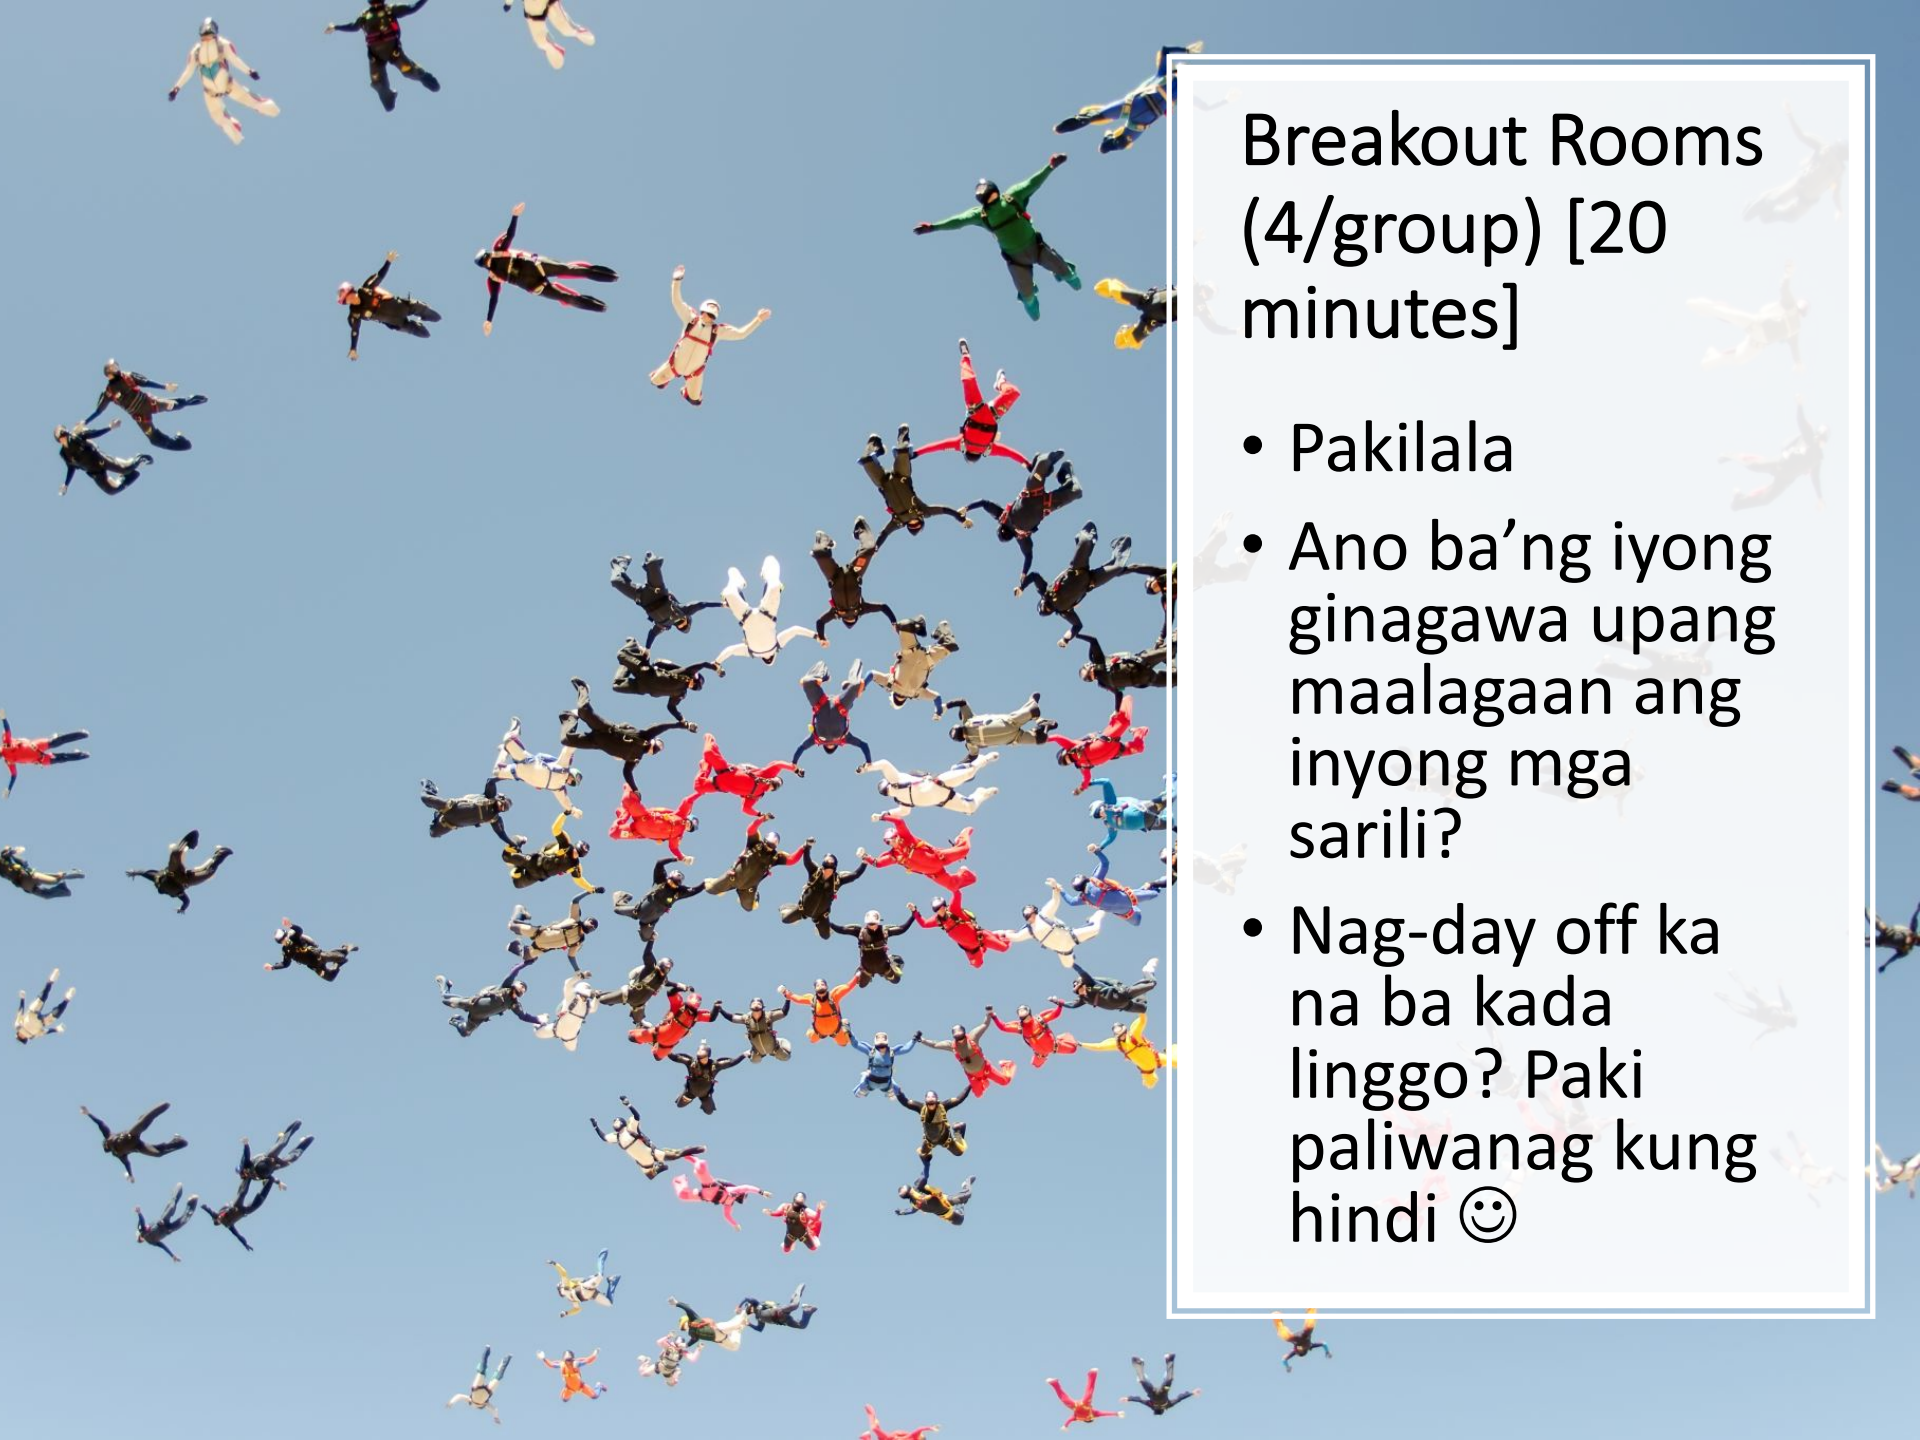

Gates, J. Self-Care: A Christian Perspective. Evangelical Review of Theology. 39, no. 1 (January 2015): 4-17.

4. We can care for ourselves

- a) recognize the importance of self care.
- b) distinguish between self-care & self-indulgence
- c) view love for God, others & our selves as one package
- d) grow more loving to God, others, & ourselves through the assistance of the HS & others
